Supported functionality

Goods receipt is entered with mobile end devices and barcodes, as well as with label printing and the creation of pallet labels. Orders can be transferred from an enterprise resource planning system via an interface to automatically register them.

Warehousing according to customizable optimization strategies for different warehouse storage systems such as block storage, shelving or high-bay racking. The goods are entered as "on place" exact to the second via a mobile end device or a smartphone...

Material requisition and stock removal are derived from the production order via a standard interface. The warehouse manager consequently sets up the picking orders and starts the material movement to the place in need.

The stock management continuously takes into account serial numbers, batches and expiration dates. Blocked stock can be defined individually in the master data. This is how paperless inventory processes are turned into a child's play, too.
